OPTOMETRY CONTENT SHOOT · NOV 2026

The faces behind Adit

One shoot with Blake Farrow, Adit's optometry lead. We film the "Comment DEMO" ad, then keep rolling for a month of bonus reels: real talk on the pain points ODs deal with every day, and a fun look at the person behind the software.

1
shoot day, about 2 hours on set

20+
bonus reels from one session

3
series: Get to Know Blake, OD Pain Points, Hot Takes

INSIDE

1. The shoot plan · 2. Get to Know Blake · 3. OD Pain Points (Dan Martell style) · 4. Hot Takes, Myths + Rapid Fire · 5. Edit style · 6. Facebook groups + posting plan

WHY THIS WORKS

People buy from people. Let's show the people.

Optometrists hear from software companies all day. What they rarely see is the person who actually understands their front desk. Blake has spent nearly a decade inside optometry practices, buying groups and conferences. These reels put his face, his stories and his opinions in front of ODs and office managers, so when they comment DEMO they already feel like they know him.

1

Film the "Comment DEMO" ad with Blake

Same script as the Black Friday plan, spoken to optometrists. Main 35s ad, a 15s cut and 3 alternate hooks. (Script on page 7.)

2

Keep rolling: Get to Know Blake

Fun, personal, fast. Who he is, why optometry, life outside Adit. Builds trust and makes the brand human.

3

OD Pain Points, Dan Martell style

Punchy, opinionated, one idea per reel. Blake names a real problem in an optometry practice and gives the fix in under 45 seconds.

4

Hot Takes, Myth vs Truth, Rapid Fire

The scroll-stoppers. Short, a little spicy, made for comments and shares in optometry Facebook groups.

5

Every reel ends the same way

"Comment DEMO" (or "DM DEMO to @get_adit"). Every bonus reel feeds the same ManyChat speed round.

Setup A · Interview

Seated, 3/4 angle, two cameras (wide + tight punch-in). Never flat to camera, never slow zooms.

Setup B · Walk and talk

Gimbal, Blake walking toward camera through an office or the booth. Best for hot takes.

Setup C · Whiteboard / desk

Blake at a desk or whiteboard, drawing the problem. The Dan Martell look.

SERIES 1 · FUN, HUMAN, 20 TO 40 SECONDS EACH

Meet the face behind the software

Ask off camera, Blake answers to camera in a full sentence. Keep the first 2 seconds as the hook (we put the question on screen).

1 "What did you want to be when you were 10, and how did you end up in optometry tech?"
Origin story. Edit: old photo or childhood B-roll if he has one.

2 "What's the first thing you notice when you walk into an optometry practice?"
Instant credibility: he's been in hundreds of offices. Edit: front desk B-roll.

3 "Best and worst thing a front desk has ever said to you on the phone?"
Storytime. Funny, relatable for every office manager.

4 "What's one thing ODs would be surprised to learn about the people building their software?"
Humanizes the Adit team. Cut in team B-roll from the booth.

5 "Your go-to conference move: coffee, booth or hallway?"
Light, fun, perfect for TOA / Vision Trends / conference B-roll.

6 "Who's the best optometrist you've ever worked with, and what did they do differently?"
Praise a type of doctor (no names needed). Doctors will want to be that doctor.

7 "What does a day in your life at Adit actually look like?"
Day-in-the-life edit: calls, demos, travel, conferences. Fast cuts with music.

8 "What's a lesson from your career you'd tell your younger self?"
Founder-style wisdom. Great for LinkedIn too.

9 "Outside of work, where do we find you on a Saturday?"
Personality. B-roll of his hobby if we can grab it.

10 "Finish the sentence: The practices that win in the next 5 years will be the ones that..."
Vision statement. Strong closer for a carousel or a series trailer.

SERIES 2 · DAN MARTELL STYLE · 30 TO 45 SECONDS

Name the problem. Give the fix.

The formula: bold hook in the first line, one clear problem, one practical fix, then "Comment DEMO". Blake says the hook straight to camera, no warm-up.

1 "If I owned an optometry practice today, the first thing I'd fix is the phones."
Pain: missed calls = patients booking at the chain down the street. Fix: AI front desk that answers, texts back and books.

2 "Your recall list is a gold mine, and most practices never touch it."
Pain: annual exams slipping. Fix: automated recall texts and online booking.

3 "Stop letting contact lens patients reorder online somewhere else."
Pain: lost CL revenue. Fix: reorder reminders and easy text-to-pay.

4 "Insurance verification is quietly eating your front desk alive."
Pain: VSP / EyeMed checks, hold times, surprises at checkout. Fix: verify before the visit.

5 "Your glasses are ready. Does the patient know?"
Pain: jobs sitting in the drawer, endless "is it ready?" calls. Fix: automatic pickup texts.

6 "3 signs your front desk is drowning (and it's not their fault)."
Pain: staffing shortage, burnout. Fix: take the repetitive work off their plate.

7 "The clipboard is costing you 10 minutes per patient."
Pain: paper intake, late starts. Fix: digital forms done before they walk in.

8 "Happy patients don't leave reviews unless you ask at the right moment."
Pain: few Google reviews vs the big chains. Fix: automatic review request right after the visit.

9 "Independent ODs can beat the big chains, here's how."
Pain: private equity and retail competition. Fix: faster response, personal touch, modern patient experience.

10 "The most expensive call is the one nobody answered at 12:30."
Pain: lunch-hour and after-hours calls. Fix: something that picks up when the team can't.

11 "No-shows aren't a patient problem. They're a reminder problem."
Pain: empty exam lanes. Fix: two-way texting and confirmations.

12 "Here's what I'd tell an OD opening their first practice."
Advice reel. Tech stack, front desk, first 100 patients.

SERIES 3 · SCROLL-STOPPERS · 10 TO 25 SECONDS

Short, a little spicy, made for comments

🔥 Hot takes (walk and talk)

"Hot take: your website isn't your front door anymore. Your phone is."

"Hot take: the front desk is the most important role in an optometry practice."

"Hot take: if a patient has to call you to book, you're already behind."

"Hot take: AI won't replace your front desk. It'll make them the best in town."

✅❌ Myth vs Truth

Myth: "Patients don't want to text their eye doctor." Truth: they'd rather text than call.

Myth: "New software means months of training." Truth: the best tools feel easy on day one.

Myth: "Only big practices need automation." Truth: small teams need it most.

Myth: "AI sounds robotic to patients." Truth: let them hear it (play a sample).

⚡ Rapid fire (one take, 60 seconds)

Glasses or contacts? · Coffee or energy drink? · Best conference city? · Text or call? · Best piece of advice from an OD? · One app you can't live without? · Favorite part of the job? · Morning person or night owl?

🤔 This or That: front desk edition

Phone ringing during check-in or printer jam? · Walk-in with no insurance card or patient 20 minutes late? · Paper forms or no forms? · Voicemail at 5:01 PM or Monday morning call rush?

Great as a split-screen with Blake reacting.

💬 Facebook group conversation starters (Blake asks, the group answers)

"ODs: what's the one task you'd automate tomorrow if you could?" · "Office managers: what's the #1 call you get every single day?" · "What's the craziest thing a patient has said at your front desk?" · "How many missed calls do you think your practice gets a week? Guess, then check." Post the reel, then drop the question as the caption. Reply to every comment.

HOW WE CUT IT

The Dan Martell look, Adit colors

ELEMENT	HOW WE DO IT
Hook	First line on screen in big bold text within 1 second. Question reels show the question as a title card.
Pace	Cut every breath and pause. Punch in on key words (wide to tight camera). Nothing over 45 seconds.
Captions	Word-by-word, Adit blue + orange highlights on the money words ("missed calls", "recall", "DEMO").
B-roll	Every "problem" line gets a visual: phone ringing, front desk, glasses in the pickup drawer, the Adit dashboard, conference floor.
Graphics	Simple number callouts ("3 signs...", "$" counters), whiteboard sketches from Setup C.
Sound	Clean lav audio, light music bed, subtle whooshes on punch-ins. Phone ring sound effect on missed-call reels.
Color	Clean, bright and natural. Never shoot flat.
End card	Blake: "Comment DEMO and I'll send you the Black Friday deal." On screen: COMMENT "DEMO" · ENDS NOV 30.

9:16 for everything

Reels, TikTok, Facebook, YouTube Shorts. Pull 1:1 cuts for Facebook groups.

Batch the series

Same intro sting per series so people recognize "Get to Know Blake" and "OD Pain Points" in the feed.

Thumbnails

Blake's face + 3 to 4 words. "Your phones are leaking." "Recall = gold."

TURN ONE SHOOT INTO A MONTH OF CONTENT

Where it goes and when

WEEK	POST	WHERE
Week 1	"Comment DEMO" ad with Blake + 2 Pain Points reels + 1 Get to Know Blake	@get_adit Reels + Facebook, Blake's LinkedIn
Week 2	2 Pain Points + 1 Hot Take + 1 Myth vs Truth	Same, plus 3 to 5 optometry Facebook groups
Week 3	2 Pain Points + Rapid Fire + 1 Get to Know Blake	Same, plus Stories from Josh, Steven and Phillip
Week 4	Best performer re-cut + "last chance, ends Nov 30" version of the ad	Everywhere, pinned on @get_adit

Facebook groups, the right way

Read each group's promo rules. Lead with the reel and a real question, not a pitch. 3 to 5 groups a day max, different caption each time. Send people to comment DEMO on the Reel or DM DEMO to @get_adit (ManyChat can't trigger inside groups).

Blake as the face

Post from Blake's own profile when the group allows it. A real person sharing a reel gets far more reach and trust than a brand page.

THE AD, BLAKE'S VERSION (OPTOMETRY)

"Optometrists, comment the word DEMO. I'll tell you why in 20 seconds. Adit is running our biggest deal of the year for Black Friday: up to 40% off your first year, plus a $200 Amazon gift card just for checking it out. $50 after a 30 minute demo, $150 more when you go annual. Phones, texting, scheduling, forms, reviews, payments, and an AI front desk that picks up when your team can't. Comment DEMO, I'll send you a 60 second game in your DMs, and you're in. Deal ends November 30."

Offer fine print (from adit.com): Offer valid Nov 1 to 30, 2026. The $50 Amazon gift card is sent after the demo. The additional $150 applies when the practice signs up for an annual plan paid upfront. Terms apply.